Third-party verification

Fonte: https://core.telegram.org/api/bots/verification · Extraído em 23 de outubro de 2026

To further improve transparency on Telegram, official third-party services are able to assign extra verification icons to user accounts and chats — in order to prevent scams and reduce misinformation.

This is done through official verified bots, verified by Telegram as specified here ».

Once verified by Telegram, the following schema can be used by the bot or by the user that owns the bot to assign or revoke the third-party verification icon of user accounts and chats:

Bots that can verify peers will have the botInfo. `verifier_settings` flag set (botInfo is contained in the bot's userFull), containing a botVerifierSettings constructor, containing the ID of the custom emoji » used as verification icon, the name of the organization that provides verification, an optional default description for the verification and a flag that indicates whether the bot is allowed to set a custom description field for individual verified peers.

Bots that have the `verifier_settings` flag set may invoke bots.setCustomVerification to verify peers or remove verification from peers: this method may be also invoked by the owner of the verifier bot, passing the bot's ID in `bot`.

Verified peers will have the `bot_verification_icon` flag populated with the ID of the custom emoji » used as verification icon in the associated user, channel constructors, and a more detailed `bot_verification` flag containing a botVerification constructor in the associated userFull, channelFull, chatInvite constructors.
